Pleasure Pier Project Again Held In Balance

A Month of Miracles

Public Meeting Called at City Hall Dec. 12

Protests of property owners at Sunset Cliffs may next week kill the chances of San Diego city and county receiving a pleasure pier that would indeed be an asset to the North Shore beach area.

For many years a good pier has been a necessary adjunct of the City of San Diego for the convenience of fishermen and others who get a great deal of pleasure from a pier. There has been no denial but that it would attract inland visitors and hold many here who now go farther north where piers are located.

The city council in Tuesday's session appropriated $1608 which will be matched by a similar amount from the county and these funds are to furnish preliminary work on a pier with an improvement project at Sunset Cliffs park, both to total $198,350 and the balance to be furnished from WPA funds.

W. B. Kenderdine and I. I. Ingraham had sent in letters of protest to the council against the pier being located at Sunset Cliffs, however, when informed of the extent of the improvements proposed for Sunset Cliffs park they withdrew their objections at Tuesday's meeting. The only protests remaining, it is said, were those of Harry Collins of Sunset Cliffs and a representative of May Turner Riach, the latter having recently acquired the Mills property.

No effort should be spared at this time to see this project of a 1945 foot steel and timber pier constructed now while the opportunity presents itself to secure such an improvement with practically no cash outlay to San Diego city or county.

A public hearing will be held at 3 p. m., Thursday, December 12, at the council chamber in the city hall by the planning commission at which protest will be heard as well as citizens who favor the project.

Ocean Beach people interested in having a pier located here should turn out in full force to this meeting of December 12.

Polls at Schools Tuesday Election

Residents of Ocean Beach, Loma Portal and Point Loma are reminded that they will vote at school houses, instead of regular city precincts, in next Tuesday's school election.

Residents of Ocean Beach who usually vote at precincts 12 to 19 inc., will cast their ballots at the Ocean Beach school, 4741 Santa Monica avenue.

Residents of Loma Portal and Pt. Loma, who ordinarily vote in precints 20 to 23 inc., will cast their ballots at the Loma Portal grammar school, 3341 Browning street.

Anyone wishing a car to call for them so they may vote at the school, call BV-0071-W and car service will be arranged.

In the Ocean Beach-Loma Portal-Point Loma district, exponents of the "Make our Schools Safe" program are urging everyone to go to the polls and vote "yes" next Tuesday.

The proposition which voters will pass upon is one to quake-proof all of the public schools. If the city votes approximately $2,500,000 as its share of the reconstruction program Tuesday, the bonds so voted will be sold only in the event that a federal grant of nearly $2,000,000 is secured, according to Orton E. Darnall, president of the board of education.

KIWANIANS HEAR OF TUNA FISH INDUSTRY

Earl Gustafson of the Westgate Sea Food Products Co. was the speaker with Milton Lancaster chairman of Wednesday luncheon meeting. According to Mr. Gustafson, San Diego is the largest packers of tuna fish, sardines and mackerel. The Portuguese have proved to be the best fishermen to enter the industry. San Diego has two of the largest tuna canneries in the world. All tuna are caught by hook and line and science has yet to learn where they spawn. Tuna tastes less like fish than any other variety that swims the seven seas or inland streams it was said.

Adding to the steadily growing list of new homes at Ocean Beach this week's permits show three new homes will be constructed just as fast as workmen can put them up. They are as follows:

S. V. Grobecker, foundation $250, at 4327 Santa Monica avenue.

Last Meeting of Year For Chamber of Commerce

Ocean Beach chamber of commerce will meet in regular session next Monday evening at the Woman's club house at 8 p. m.

DANIEL CALDWELL FOUND DEAD IN HOME HERE

Daniel Caldwell, 70, was found dead, apparently victim of a heart attack, in his home at 4610 Santa Cruz avenue, late Monday. He last was seen alive by neighbors Thursday.

Monday Cassius Insko noted that no newspapers had been taken from the porch since Thursday and looked thru a window. He saw the prone figure of Caldwell, and notified police. A. E. Gallagher, deputy coroner, sent the body to Kent's mortuary, notified a brother, Paul F. Caldwell, 4710 Valley Brink st., Los Angeles, and announced there would be no inquest.

Mr. Caldwell was a highly respected citizen of the beach, owning several pieces of property in the residence section as well as some on Newport avenue.

EDITOR GETS AN EYE FULL?

The editor has been suffering the past three weeks with allergic conjunctivitis of the left eye, which just before Thanksgiving got the better of us and it was necessary to remain in a darkened room for a few days. We are pleased to report some improvement in our condition and hope for complete recovery in the near future. The concern of our friends has been appreciated.

V.F.W. and Legion Plan Relief for Needy at Christmas Time

Christmas of 1935, will mark the fourth year in which the Lieut. Bert A. Allen post 2415, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, and post 433 of the American Legion have assumed the responsibility of seeing to it that the needy of our community receive necessary food and clothes at Yuletide. At a recent meeting of the Christmas Relief Committees of these two organizations, plans were formulated for carrying out this worthy work.

Many propositions were put forth by the right members of the two committees and out of all the numerous ideas put forward by the members as to ways and means of raising funds, food, and articles of clothing, three were finally adopted.

Barrels and boxes will be placed in the various stores of the community for the purpose of receiving all canned foods and articles of staple groceries which a generous public may feel able to contribute. Articles of clothing may also be placed in these receptables. Please wrap the clothing.

In order to raise cash funds, so necessary for the last minute purchase of spoilable foods, a card party will be held at the Woman's club on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, December the 13th. The card party will be given by the two ladies auxiliaries of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts. Committee chairmen are announced as follows: committee on tickets, Eleanor McCaffrey and Elizabeth Finley; committee on prizes, Ann Madigan and Clara Lindenmeyer; committee on refreshments, Bette Knauer and Sadie Sweeney; committee on arrangements, Florence Norris and Grace Chadwick.

It is the aim of the card party committee to set forth the merits of this undertaking in such a manner as to induce every merchant, manufacturer, doctor, lawyer, etc., to purchase at least one table of cards. To this end, representatives of the sponsoring organzations are now interviewing all business and professional men in the Ocean Beach district. To date, we are glad to say, the response has been 100 percent, and altho very few have been visited we do wish to make acknowledgment to the following for their co-operation: Ocean Beach police station, Cundell's Meat Market, Ocean Beach 5c to $1 store, Henry Lancaster Real Estate, Ocean Beach Park Vegetable market, Clark Bros. Ocean Beach Park Market, and Dr. Marvin Eby.

All civic and fraternal organizations have been invited to assist in putting over this party. The Woman's club has donated the use of their hall.

Mr. Gruber of the Ocean Beach Strand Theatre will present a special matinee on Thursday, Dec. 19th, the proceeds of which will be donated to the Xmas Relief Fund. Admission for this one performance will be at regular admission prices, or canned or staple articles of food. Altho arrangements have not yet been completed, it is hoped to obtain the cooperation of the Ocean Beach District schools to permit children to be absent on that afternoon who wish to attend Mr. Gruber's benefit performance at the Strand Theatre.

An especially good screen entertainment will be billed on that date: "Stars Over Broadway" and "The Goose and the Gander". The American Legion post 433, and Lieut. Bert A. Allen post 2415, Veterans of Foriegn Wars, wish to take this opportunity of thanking the Strand Theatre for the largest individual assistance so far received. The appreciation of the entire Ocean Beach district are owing to Mr. Gruber and staff of the Strand Theatre.

Anyone knowing of needy families should contact Commander Fred H. Norris, BV 0446-R, Commander Logan E. Ruggles, BV 0045-J, or The Ocean Beach News, BV 0741.

O.E.S. Installation Impressive Ceremony

Engraving courtesy S. D. Union.

GLADYS B. NELSON 1936 Matron

Point Loma chapter, O. E. S., held its annual public installation of officers Saturday, at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the Ocean Beach elementary school.

The setting for this installation was exceptionally beautiful, being of original design using a huge fan of sparkling silver filigree as a background from which the matron-elect and patron-elect were escorted followed by their officers. Mrs. Lillian Hartvigsen sang "Last Night When All Was Still" and Herbert Berndt whistled "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

The officers were beautifully gowned in shell pink carrying bouquets of pink roses and lavendar sweet peas which made an effective picture against a background of potted palms and ferns in floral baskets. The chapter room was lighted by tall electric candelabras using shell pink tapers at each star point.

Edgar F. Hastings gave the address of welcome and invited the installing officers into the chapter room. Edythe F. Kenline, retiring worthy matron, and Harry P. Sweet, retiring worthy patron, were the official installing officers and were assisted by Lenore Nyhan, sponsor for the associate matrons, who installed Gladys Bishop Nelson into the office of worthy matron; Harry P. Sweet installed the worthy patron, Nels Berge; Edgar Hastings, installed the treasurer, Arley B. Hastings, and Judge Lloyd E. Griffin, installed the star points.

After the installation of the worthy matron, Bonham Bros. quartet sang "Friends" and for the worthy patron a solo was sung by George Maddox "Just For Today," Lillian Hartvigsen sang "Star of the East" as the star points stood at their stations.

Other officers installed were Hazel Lathrop, associate matron; W. F. Burnett, associate patron; Ella D. Cole, secretary; Arley B. Hastings, treasurer; Ruth Berndt, conductress; Coranna Burnett, associate conductress; Helen Parks, chaplain; Betty VanCott, marshal; Ruth Bailey, proxy for Mary C. Lee, organist; Fern Herbst, Ada; Margaret Ussery, Ruth; Freda Follette, Esther; Olive Sweet, Martha; Laurah Rankin, Electa; Mary Louise Landeau, warder; LeRoy Lee, sentinel.

Ethel Dougherty served as installing marshall assisted by Florence Cobb; Mary Lee was installing organist and Mathilda Peebles, installing chaplain. Ruth Bailey carried the Bible into the chapter and Dr. Gilmer carried the Flag into the chapter room.

Several short speeches were made by the honored guests in the East and the new worthy matron was presented with a gavel by the worthy patron.

The Ocean Beach Floral association met Tuesday evening in the American Legion hall. Mesdames Van Hook and Cunningham led the discussion on flowers, etc. This was a follow-up discussion from the one that Mrs. Pearl Wood had previously given on annual flowers.

Local Board Education Member Explains Bond Issue

At a community night at Ocean Beach school Tuesday, Ed Wickern, president of the Kiwanis club, introduced Ray Reynolds who thoroly discussed the earthquake reconstruction program which is to be referred by the Board of Education to the voters on December 10, in a bond election.

As a member of the Board of Education familiar with the business management of the schools, Mr. Reynolds quoted some significant figures. The board has been spending approximately $63,000 per year maintaining buildings that should be replaced, and can last only one, two, or three years. He said its the same proposition as major overhaul of a car or replacement. The figures by years spent on repair of old buildings from which this average was figured are:

1931-32	$77,400
1932-33	$23,740
1933-34	$54,666
1934-35	$96,017

The plan is for a twenty-five year bond issue. The interest would be $100,000 a year. Since the board has been averaging an expenditure of $63,000 in capital outlay for maintenance of the junk type of buildings, they feel they can divert $50,000 a year from the maintenance to the interest. The peak year of the bonds would be five years from now, when $100,000 interest and $118,000 the first principal payment would fall due. Interest due from the fifth year on would fall approximately $5,000 per year.

Total payment for the program under the bond issue and federal aid plan would be $4,008,800. A pay as you go plan would cost $4,184,000, and the board would face where to begin work: Ocean Beach or east San Diego. Mr. Reynolds said the Board of Education was not trying to foster a bond issue but to operate schools efficiently and safely, and maintain morale of the employees, and the high rating among systems in the state. He reminded us that we are one of the low cost operating schools systems in the state.

He spoke of the great growth in San Diego forecasted by the Chamber of Commerce. If the board ignores 90 percent of that estimate, the remaining 10 percent expected growth would make the board face a real problem. San Diego is not overhoused in schools. It is operating a school system almost up to capacity at present.

School buildings in San Diego now earthquake proof are very few; Franklin school's new unit, the new building of Ocean Beach, and the Point Loma shop and auditorium, and the new unit at Alice Birney. With the rest of the buildings either reconstruction or replacement is faced. One third of the money will be spent in entirely new buildings amounting in round figures to $936,000 for the replacement program.

Mr. Reynolds threw the meeting open for questions. He urged people opposed to the bond issue to express themselves. Many pertinent questions were asked and satisfactorily answered by the speaker of the evening.

League Postpones the Oil Embargo

NOVEMBER 29 had been set as the date for a meeting of the League of Nations sanctions committee to consider the impositon of an oil embargo against Italy, but Premier Laval and British Ambassador George Russell Clerk, after a conference in Paris, recommended that the session be indefinitely postponed, and this action was taken. The statesmen feared early oil sanctions would seriously aggravate the political situation, and Laval thought if he were given more time he might bring about the conciliation of the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel.

Premier Laval

There were good reasons for the uneasiness of the French and British governments. Benito Mussolini had bluntly told the world that the imposition of an oil embargo would mean war in Europe, the warning being given through his ambassador to France, Vittorio Cerruti. Furthermore, there was doubt in London and Paris concerning the abilty of the United States government to prevent the shipment of oil to Italian ports. In Washington it was reported that Ambassador Augusto Rosso had discussed the matter with Secretary of State Hull, suggesting that attempts to choke off exports of oil, copper, cotton and other commercial articles did not constitute "orthodox" neutrality.

Emperor Haile Selassie made two airplane flights to the fighting fronts in Ethiopia and cheered up his forces so that their resistance to the invasion was measurably stiffened, especially in the South. The government at Addis Ababa announced that its armies had driven the Italian troops back from Gorahai, recapturing the town of Gabredarre. In the North the advance of the Italinas beyond Makale was very slight because of attacks on the supply columns and patrols, and Italian casualties were increasing, though the Ethiopian losses probably were much larger. The invaders are finding out what they were told from the beginning, that most of the occupied territory is untenable militarily.

Communists Stir Revolt in Northern Brazil

BRAZIL was experiencing another revolt, in the northern part of the country. Latest advices said the rebels had control of the city of Natal and that a hot fight was on for possession of Pernambuco. The uprising was laid to the Communists and was believed to be led by Luis Carlos Prestes, Communist leader for all of South America. It was said he planned to spread the movement all over Brazil, Argentina, Paraguay and Chile.

Under command of Gen. Manuel Rabelo, the federal troops, army and navy airplanes and two cruisers were hurriedly sent northward to combat the rebellion.

The revolt started when non-commissioned officers of the Twenty-first battalion, at Natal, began a march on the palace of the provincial governments, trying to seize Gov. Rafael Fernandez, who took refuge in the police barracks. The rebels then engaged in a battle with loyal regulars.

American Delegation for Naval Conference

ELEVEN American diplomats and naval officers, selected by Secretary of State Hull, have sailed to represent this country in the coming naval conference in London. At their head is Norman H. Davis, the President's ambassador-at-large for Europe, who participated in the preliminary conversations last year. Acting with him will be Undersecretary of State William Phillips and Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations. Advisers to the delegation will be Ray Atherton, counselor of the American embassy in London, and E. H. Dooman of the State department, who knows all about Japanese and other Far Eastern affairs.

N. H. Davis

Noel H. Field of the division of western European affairs, who attended the last naval conversations, and Samuel Reber, secretary of the American legation in Bern, Switzerland, will act as technical assistants.

The navy's four technical experts will be Capt. Royal E. Ingersol, Commander Roscoe E. Schuirmann, Lieut. Arthur D. Ayrault, and Lieut. J. R. Fulton.

David M. Key, assistant chief of the division of current information, will act as press officer for the delegation in its contacts with foreign newspaper men, and R. Allen Haden will serve as the delegation's secretary.

When the conversations in London have gone far enough to indicate what the several nations may be expected to do, President Roosevelt will direct the course to be followed by Mr. Davis and his colleagues. It is taken for granted they will strive to bring about an agreement for the limiting of future naval construction.

Federal Reserve Bulletin Notes Business Recovery

GOVERNORS of the federal reserve banks, in the bulletin of the reserve board, have sounded a most cheerful note concerning business conditions. Summing up facts gathered all over the country, they concluded that the United States was undergoing the most substantial economic recovery since the depression began, with every sign pointing to its continuance.

Business activity has been sustained for ten months near the high level it reached the first of the year, the bulletin said, "in contrast to the course of business in the three preceding years when advances were not sustained but were quickly followed by declines."

Here are some of the elements the bulletin says are contributing to this most desirable state of affairs:

Industrial activity during the first ten months of this year has been at a higher level than in any of the four preceding years, with the chief acceleration in industries producing durable goods.

Residential building has shown a "marked and sustained" increase for the first time since the decline, which in this industry began in 1928.

The greater industrial activity has been accompanied by increased incomes to both industrial workers and farmers, and greater distribution of commodities to consumers.

Continued ease in the money market and accumulation of a vast amount of idle money have been reflected in a revival of the capital market, resulting in security flotations in larger volume than at any time since 1930.

Profits of large corporations have increased, accompanied by a "sustained" advance in security prices, representing primarily the effect of cash buying by investors.

China Clipper Carries Air Mail to Orient

PAN-AMERICAN Airways opened a new chapter in the story of aviation when its huge China Clipper carried the first consignment of air mail from Alameda, Calif., to Manila, with stops at Honolulu, Midway islands, Wake Island, and Guam. Capt. Edwin C. Musick, veteran chief pilot of the company, was in command of the craft and was aided by a crew of six men. Fourteen passengers started on the flight and twelve were dropped off to relieve the staffs at Midway and Wake. The 1,700 miles between Guam and Manila had not been flown heretofore.

Capt. Edwin C. Musick

After one or two more flights to Manila the clipper will continue to China and operate on through schedules thereafter.

The Philippine Clipper, second of Pan-American Airways' trans-Pacific air fleet, arrived at Alameda from the Atlantic coast and her crew began preparations for a flight to Manila beginning December 6. The plane flew 500 miles from San Diego in three hours 50 minutes. Previously she had flown from Miami, Fla., to Acapulco, Mexico, 1,590 miles, and Acapulco to San Diego, 1,600 miles.

Split in the American Federation of Labor

FOR a long time it has been apparent that there would be a split in the American Federation of Labor over the issue of industrial unionism versus craft unionism. That split now has occurred, and in the ranks of organized labor there is coming a great battle between the two elements. The matter was precipitated by the resignation of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, as vice president of the federation. He is the chief protagonist for unit unionization of mass production of industries, and his opponents, the craft union advocates, are led by William Green, president of the organization. The latter have had a majority in the late conventions of the federation, but Lewis has a lot of followers and is a determined fighter. He has set up separate headquarters in Washington and seven international union leaders joined him immediately. It was reported that the "rebels" had a war fund of $10,000,000. Four-fifths of this came from a special assessment of $1 each on the 4,000,000 United Mine Workers this fall.

John L. Lewis

President Green sent a stern rebuke to Lewis and those associated with him.

It is not believed that the industrial unionists will secede from the federation, but will wage a bitter fight for supremacy within that organization.

Greece Joyfully Greets Its Restored King

KING GEORGE II on his return to Athens was welcomed by the wildly enthusiastic Greeks who insisted on carrying the restored monarch on their shoulders, despite the charges of the cavalry escort. While big guns were firing salutes, George, dressed in an admiral's uniform and wearing a monocle, landed at Phaleros, the port of Athens, from the cruiser Helle, and drove to the capital in an automobile with the crown prince. There were formal ceremonies under an arch, and then a procession to the cathedral for a te deum mass. Next George drove to the royal palace and resumed the throne he abdicated in 1923 when army and navy officers drove him into exile.

Japan Drops Northern China Autonomy Move

JAPAN suddenly learned that the autonomy movement in the northern provinces of China, fostered by the Japanese army commanders, was likely to prejudice her case in the naval conference soon to open in London. Therefore the army high command in Tokyo told its subordinates on the continent to "lay off," and the ambitious schemes of Maj. Gen Kenji Doihara came to naught, at least for the present. That plotter, who had become known as "the Lawrence of Manchuria," quietly departed from Peiping, going to Tientsin.

Kenji Doihara

Thus, for the first time in recent years, the Japanese militarists have been checked, by the Tokyo government, which informed them that the mission of the Japanese army in Manchukuo did not include intriguing for separation of the Chinese provinces and that it would not be permitted to pass south of the Great Wall without an imperial order.

Instead of the autonomy coup, the Nanking government was told by the Japanese authorities in China that it must institute reforms in the northern provinces. Akira Ariyoshi, Japanese ambassador, had a long conference with Dictator Chiang Kai-shek in Nanking, and told the press he had received assurance that the Chinese government was adequately prepared to cope with the situation in north China. Ariyoshi said he had also received assurance that Nanking desired to continue friendly relations with Japan.

At this point Yin Ju-keng, administrative commissioner of the demilitarized zone in north China, came forth with a proclamation of autonomy for the territory south of the Great Wall to within a few miles of Peiping and Tientsin, announcing that he stood for the rescue of China and close harmony with Japan. It was expected this lead might be followed by Sung Cheh-yuan, overlord of Hopei and Chahar provinces, but the attitude of other north China leaders was uncertain. Martial law was declared in Shanghaikwan, where the Great Wall dividing northern China from Manchukuo reaches the sea.

Twenty New Cardinals Named by Pope

POPE PIUS surprised the world by naming twenty new cardinals, who will be installed at a secret consistory December 16 and a public one December 19. In the group are fifteen Italians, two Frenchmen, one Argentine, one Spaniard and one Czechoslovakian. With these additions the sacred college will have sixty-nine members, the largest number in the history of the church and only one short of the full complement of thirty-nine Italians and thirty non-Italians.

The pope also named the Most Rev. Joseph C. Plagens, recently auxiliary bishop of Detroit, as bishop of the diocese of Marquette—Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia, as bishop of the Savannah diocese.

Committee Is Named to Gather G. O. P. Fund

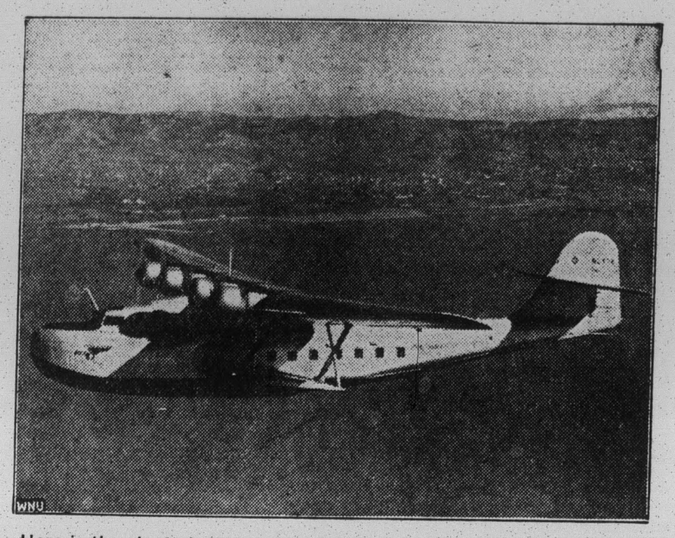

CHAIRMAN HENRY P. FLETCHER of the Republican national committee issued a call for a meeting of the committee in Washington on December 16 to fix the time and place of the party's national convention of 1936 and to consider the apportionment of delegates. It was reported that Chicago was in the lead among the cities seeking the convention.

Mr. Fletcher also announced the appointment of a committee of sixteen prominent industrialists and lawyers to raise a big campaign fund. William B. Bell of New York, president of the American Cyanamid company, will be chairman of the committee, and Charles B. Goodspeed, assistant treasurer of the Republican national committee, Chicago lawyer, will be vice chairman. Many of the members have never before participated actively in national politics.

Death of Earl Jellicoe, Jutland Battle Figure

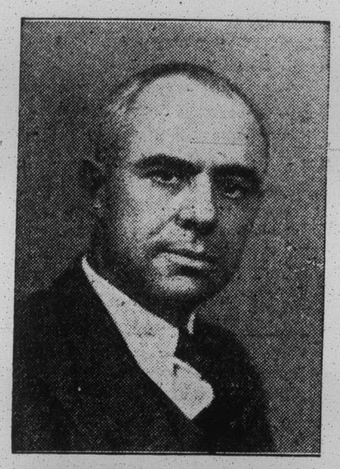

ANOTHER prominent figure of the World war passed with the death of Earl Jellicoe, who commanded the united British fleet in the great battle of Jutland and was severely criticized because he did not succeed in completely defeating the German fleet. Jellicoe, who entered the navy as a cadet at thirteen years of age, had a colorful career on British ships and in administrative positions throughout the world until at the end of four years as governor general of New Zealand in 1924 he practically retired from official public life.

SHE'S ON HER WAY TO MANILA

Here is the giant air liner China Clipper winging her way over San Francisco bay at the start of the historic flight marking inauguration of air mail service between California and the Orient. Eventually the China Clipper and sister ships will carry passengers over the 9,000 mile route. Over 100,000 pieces of mail were carried on the first flight.

Farm Leaders

Chester Davis (top), AAA administrator, will be chief speaker, and A. A. Brock (lower), State Director of Agriculture, will preside at the 68th convention of California Fruitgrowers and Farmers at Sacramento, December 4, 5 and 6.

WINE USE GROWS

SACRAMENTO—California drinkers are showing an increased preference for wine. This came to light in the monthly report of the Board of Equalization on beer and wine tax revenues. During October the state received taxes on 2,001,921 gallons of wine, compared with 1,656,570 in September, the report said. Beer consumption, which makes up 79 per cent of the beverages consumed subject to the 2-cent state tax, showed an expected seasonal decrease from September. Revenues from this source for October were $153,988, a decrease of $6,000 from the previous month.

JOBS BUT NO JOBLESS

SANTA MARIA.—This town is in a dilemma. Fifteen workers were requisitioned from the Federal re-employment agency, but none could be supplied. Work on four relief projects is being held up because there aren't enough unemployed men available o fill the jobs.

Will Jr. Editor Now

If one should go to the editorial office of the Beverly Hills Citizen and ask for the managing editor, he would meet Will Rogers, Jr. Bill, as he is known to his friends, bought the paper and at the age of 23 is one of the country's youngest newspaper publishers. He edited papers at Beverly Hills High School and Stanford University.

Asks More Money

Eleanor Boardman, former film actress, as she appeared in court seeking additional funds from her former husband, King Vidor, motion picture director, for support of their two children. Miss Boardman set forth that their two girls, Antonia, 8 and Belinda, 5, were at an age when they needed $943 a month living expenses. The sum is $433 a month more than she is now receiving.

NEW ARMY BLIMP ON COAST

Clay Carr of Visalia, only California cowboy to place, ranked fourth.

Sugar Causes Brilliant Leaf Colors of Autumn

It's not an early frost, as commonly supposed, that produces the most colorful autumn leaves, says the United States Forest Service. It's a late frost—and the sugar in the leaf—that gives us the brilliant colors. Just the right combination of temperature and moisture is needed. The best colors come when the thermometer doesn't quite reach the freezing point for several weeks during the latter part of September and through October.

Silviculturists explain that before the leaves fall a layer of cells forms at the base of the leaf, which ultimately loosens the leaf, and, when it drops off, forms a scar. If frost doesn't arrive too soon, this layer forms early and quickly. It holds more sugar in the leaf and the sweet sap causes the brilliant reds and oranges and yellows that delight the eye. This is not only true of the gorgeous sugar maples in the north, but of most of the colorful hardwood trees—the oaks, elms, birches, other maples, sweet gum, black gum, hickory, dogwood, and many others. When frost comes too early the leaves dry and lose their sugar before they have time to take on high color.

Slot Machine Messages

Making or cancelling engagements is easy for the user of a device known as the "Notificator," developed in England for use in railway stations and stores and at large public gatherings, says Popular Science Monthly. By stepping upon a small platform and dropping a coin in a slot, the patron exposes a slowly moving paper roll on which he may write a message to a friend. The message remains in view for two hours. Several rolls are provided on the machine, so that a large number of messages can be accommodated. Such messages include explanations for unkept appointments.

White Chief Rules Indians in Texas

Prosperity Due to Forceful Leader, Tribe Claims.

Livingston, Texas.—The only Indian tribe in Texas, the peaceful Alabamas, has a white chief.

Nekko Si, or Little Chief, known to his business associates here as Clem Fain, Jr., became director of the tribe at Indian Village following the death of Big Chief Sun-Kee, seventy-five.

Fain has been a friend and adviser of the Alabamas for many years, and was so loved that he was given the title of Nekko Si.

Affairs of the tribe, which had drifted from the land east of the Mississippi a century ago, greatly interested Fain.

Advised Old Chief.

Sun-Kee became chief of the tribe 25 years ago upon the death of his predecessor, Chief John Scott. Fain became his friend and advised the chief.

When adversity struck at the foundation of the band of 250 Indians in 1928, Fain advised Chief Sun-Kee, then sixty-seven, to organize the tribe formally and present a plea to the government for aid.

The tribal braves, numbering 49, formally elected Sun-Kee, then called Charley Thompson, as chief.

Immediately Chief Sun-Kee left for Washington, where he was granted an audience with Calvin Coolidge, then President. The chief asked for aid and obtained it.

Before the trip to Washington Chief Sun-Kee was grieved deeply over the poverty-stricken condition of the tribe. His band found it difficult to eke a bare living from the sandy loam near Indian village.

Have New Outlook.

The Indians were backward and had no funds to buy modern farming equipment, but now, thanks to the courage of Chief Sun-Kee and the advice of Nekko Si, they have a new outlook on life.

Farms yield good crops from sandy soil, and Indian Village has new homes, a hospital and new church and school buildings.

The Alabamas no longer have to move to more fertile lands, as did their forefathers. When the original band moved into Texas it settled near Peach Tree village in Tyler county. The Texas war for independence forced them to move, but they were friendly to Gen. Sam Houston and were rewarded in 1854 by the land grant upon which they now live.

Fain, the Alabamas' Little Chief, will rule until next January, when the tribe will elect one of its own blood to carry on the work of Sun-Kee, beloved chief.

Two Sisters Work Before Mast to See the World

Vancouver, British Columbia.—An attempt to work their way around the world in ships is being made by two young Vancouver sisters.

They are Clara M. Wilson, a school teacher, and Katherine, a stenographer. They started out on the first lap of their journey aboard the British freighter Harmatris, on which they signed as members of the crew. The Harmatris will take them to Sydney, New South Wales.

From Sydney they hope to catch a boat to India or the west coast of Australia, work their way to South Africa and up the east coast of Africa, and then go through Europe and England, returning to New York and Montreal.

The sisters said they had no special motive for undertaking the adventure.

Attempt to avert parenthood.

Vanity, the doctor explained, usually affects health in connection with attempts to acquire a graceful figure by injurious means.

BASIC VALUES

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

An old German motto reads:

When wealth is lost, nothing is lost;
When health is lost, something is lost;
When character is lost, all is lost.

"He who steals my purse, steals trash, but he who steals my good name, takes not only that which enriches him, but makes me poor indeed." How true this is. Money is only a symbol. We exchange it for the necessities and the luxuries of life. The invested dollar is valuable as a reserve; otherwise, it is more of a liability than an asset because we lose what it might earn. It is far easier to win back the money we have lost than to regain either health or character.

"When wealth is lost, nothing is lost"—not so with health, for in losing health one has lost his capacity for work and his ability to enjoy the good things of life. A prominent educator wrote as his last New Year's resolution: "This year I will take care of my health, my most precious possession. I will sleep eight hours out of twenty-four. I will not worry. I will relax, rest, eat wholesome food, and cultivate proper and regular habits in all my living." A wise resolution! The loss of health destroys much that life holds dear. Guard your health. It is your most precious physical and mental possession. For, "When health is lost, something is lost."

The most important factor in the economic and the social world is character. Character is what we are in the organic unity of our secret thinking. Remove character from business and we have bankruptcy. Character is our most important asset in the world of social values. No matter how wealthy or healthy we may be, if we do not possess character, we will be neither trusted nor admired. There are many kinds of hunger, hunger for food, for knowledge, for pleasure, but the deepest hunger is that for friendship and love.

We can buy food and pleasure with money, but not true friendship and love. The latter is achieved through character expressing itself in devotion and service.

When William the Silent died, the little children cried in the streets, not because he was wealthy or possessed a healthy constitution, but because he had character. One must possess an impeccable character to be truly loved by little children. "When character is lost, all is lost." How true in the life of today is this old German motto.

Jack's father is Mike Gibbons, welterweight champion in 1912, and his uncle was Tom Gibbons, who fought Jack Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., in 1923.

Point in Decoration

It is a pleasing point in decoration to have the union of several elements in textiles employed. For example, the visual sense can be pleased by color combinations, while the mind is gratified by correct design formations. When to these elements is added the pleasure afforded the sense of touch of certain textiles, little more is left to be desired of the fabric.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

A homestead map outlined on linen, indicating where the place is and how to get to it. Such a map may also be drawn.

THE woman who wants to give gifts that are individual and unique should work maps of her home and send them to friends who live at a distance, especially. If you have a good snap shot of your house in one of its most attractive aspects, have it enlarged to whatever size you would like it in the map picture. Trace the outlines and transfer to natural colored linen. It is well to put in traceries of tree and shrub outlines, and the street or road, if it shows. If not, make the transfer first to a large sheet of paper, and then draw lines indicating the street or road. This picture can be further embellished by birds flying in the sky above house and trees, by curls of smoke coming from chimneys, by extra trees, shrubs, etc. And be sure to put a compass in the lower left or right hand corner of the pictorial map.

Remember this is a map, not a realistic picture, and it requires to be a plan rather than a sketch. This is so true that a certain crudity is permissible. For example, the dwelling may be drawn, from the enlarged photographs instead of traced, as mentioned. The trees can be indicated (see accompanying illustration) and hills, rivers and surrounding country be outlined. These should be correctly positioned. That is, the river or pond, hill or mountain, and especially the roads leading to the place should be so drawn that they come as they would in relation to the view of the house. A hill back of the house must be back of it in the drawing.

Be Accurate.

Do not let your imagination run away with you in the map-scape. Stick to the lay-out of the land, trees, dwellings, etc., as it really is in the section of country you are including in the picture. The names of streets or roads should be lettered in. Print the words in the spaces indicated as roads. Names of hills, mountains and rivers and ponds should be so lettered.

The compass would be merely crossed lines, one running due north and south crossed by one running due east and west, with the letters N. S. W. E. put correctly at ends of lines. Across the bottom of the map, letter in a phrase to indicate it's a map of your place, and how to get to it. Something like: "Map showing how to get to Home of Smith, by Mary Smith"; or "Welcome to our Home, drawn and worked by Mary Smith"; or "Map of Smith Homestead and Surrounding Country by Mary Smith."

Crude Maps Interesting.

The crudity of the drawing is part of the charm of these maps of homesteads, so do not hesitate to draw and work one in any preferred outline stitches. Plain outline is best for houses, and indeed for map purposes. Lettering should be as good as you can print it. However, the important thing is to have the words readable and in their correct places. As maps are free from puzzling details, make yours simple and do not put too much in it.

When the map is done, dampen and press it on the wrong side and frame it in a narrow black molding, or make a passe-partout of it. Colored embroidery medium is best to use—green for hills, brown for roads, blue for rivers and water indicated, the house color for your home, with red chimney, etc.

Philatelists especially were interested in the stunt performed by these two circus camels the other day. They carried the mail from Fort Tejon to Los Angeles, Calif., as did the camels of Gen. NATIONAL CITIZEN AND SAINT

Nearly every week the nation bows reverently to the memory and fame of some great citizen. Just 100 years ago, John Marshall died; that distinguished man of deep legal merit and action. His public life has scarcely an equal. During the crucial colonial period of the United States government—its constitution, the rights and independence of the people, this grand and noble statesman used his might and mind and saved us from the pitfall of destruction. Therefore, we observe this national figure on the century of his death.

During the formative period of American government, John Marshall was the instrumental agent in promoting the development of a strong central judiciary which has endured since with lasting confidence. He knew that game practiced among the unscrupulous politician, like of today, and fought against every scheme with victory for the common people.

The name of John Marshall is a credit to his memory. A native of Virginia born in 1755, he became a lieutenant and captain in the Revolutionary War. His legal ability was appreciated to such an extent that for eight different sessions in the Virginia Legislature the people were served by him. From here he went to Congress in 1798, and became Secretary of State in 1800. Always honored for his powerful sagacity, he was made Chief Justice the next year, and served 23 years, until his death.

It is said of him that the Liberty Bell was cracked while being tolled by the Chief Justice, on July 8, 1835, some weeks prior to his death. The outstanding principle of Chief Justice Marshall is spoken in these words: "Equal Justice Under Law!". This made his life a living inspiration and an everlasting memorial to his name.

Perhaps one of the most imposing ventures of tremendous importance for joining nations under a transportation plan, is the linking together of highways to be built from North America, thru Central America to and including South America. Last June, Congress appropriated $1,000,000 "to meet such expenses as the President in his descretion may deem necessary to enable the United States to co-operate . . . in connection with survey and construction of the proposed inter-American highway." The President designated $340,000 for the bridges—one over the Chiriqui River in Panama, one over the Choluteca in Honduras and one over the Chiriqui River in Panama, one over the Choluteca in Honduras and one over the Tamazulapa in Guatemala. The U. S. will furnish the designing, steel and fabricated structure, mechanical equipment and transportation. The country where the work is being done will furnish all local materials, labor, and approaches. Drivers from the U. S. will enter the new highway at Laredo, Texas, and reach its end at Panama City. Later it will be extended into South America.

The country at large, is in a tangent over the ill form of wealth distribution. It is swiftly becoming the popular belief that the goods of this world should not be hoarded in the hands of the few, and the warning cry, "Famine in the midst of plenty," is rousing the many to action for relief. The Brookings Institution has been working for three years, and now thinks it knows what's wrong with the country, and how to cure it. It's proposal might be described as a demand for low prices thru the immediate handing to the consumer of the benefits of improved technical progress. Complete revamping of the basic price policies of the nation's business thru "voluntary codes" or other forms of agreement should be the first step on the new road to recovery. With this policy, say the Brookings authorities, prices could be brought far down—And the supply, as well as the American standard of living, could be sent far up in a day.

California sunshine is glorious, but sunshine alone does not fill the stomach. After all, there are different ways to look at it. For instance: take a hike into the mountains, and there is food which few realize. The air and other ingredients of the altitude and forests are food—invisible food, for air is more necessary than food. For most natural exercise, nothing compares to such a hike. Muscular tension is needed the same as bodily nourishment. There is medicine in the hike that few realize. The direct rays of sun on the body supply the electricity, energy and vitality to the human storage battery, renewing it in vigor, strength and vitality. This is food! New environment is new enchantment, especially when there is a natural outdoor setting among trees, rich in charm from foliage and the perfume of wooded surroundings.

Yuletide season is with us again, filled with its memories of joys in past years and as a reminder of Christmas happiness just before us. Yuletide is the advance agent of cheer goodwill and the giving spirit; it comes at a time when mind and energy are drawn from the complex of everyday business with its drive and hustle. It has been a year of adversity with thousands, and has taught people anew the joy of giving. Being compelled to share with others less fortunate, they have learned to become willing to share, and this Christmas tide will find the spirit of giving a noble experience, as well as giving up some things. No better spirit than this, that with all our innate selfishness and greed, we can find supreme sentiment of joy and satisfaction in giving gifts.

The world is rendering its stewardship to the Red Cross Society, which has just closed its annual campaign for funds to carry on its work for another year. From every section the ingathering of contributions has been remarkably liberal, notwithstanding the continual increase in demands. This great Mother Nurse carries on all over the world—it acts in all public calamities and it cares for the injured and unfortunate everywhere. The American Red Cross is the largest and most important of all the societies which date back to the Geneva Convention of 1863 when the organization was established.

"No worthwhile man ever really grows up."

There is always that spirit of state pride, when talking about California's orange industry and yield. The past year's output sounds like prosperity when 99,000 cars loaded with these manderin beauties went out of the state. That represents a monument of prosperity and wealth to the growers. The California Fruit Grower's Exchange is the biggest citrus organization in the world and the Mutual Orange Distributors (M. O. D.) is the second largest.

POULTRY HELPS

By E. E. Steele.

Tuberculosis is a chronic, infectious disease of domestic and wild birds.

The disease is caused by Mycobacterium tuberculosis avium and is brought to the poultry yard by carriers. A peculiarity of tuberculosis of birds is that the liver and intestines are nearly always very severely affected, and as a consequence the organisms are very numerous in the intestinal contents and are scattered with the droppings everywhere the infected birds go. In the same way wild birds spread the disease.

The disease usually progresses slowly and symptoms are generally not observed until the affection has reached an advanced stage, therefore it is the older fowls, those more than one-year-old which show the most pronounced symptoms and a high death rate.

The first sign of the disease is a gradual loss of weight, wasting of the muscles especially noticeable in the breast, paleness of the comb, and toward the end, dullness, sleepiness and diarrhea with yellowish or greenish droppings.

Often there is a tuberculous inflamation of the joints and tendon sheaths which causes lameness and swelling of the joints and legs.

Occasionally the skin over the swollen joints breaks, and a small quantity of cheesy material is discharged.

There is no treatment and if the outbreak is extensive it is best to get rid of the entire flock.

Post-mortem — Grayish-white or yellowish tumors of varyings sizes in the internal organs, liver, spleen and intestines.

Warren-Walker School

John Alden came very nearly losing his life last Wednesday at our school. He went into the yard to get a pail of water, when suddenly out of the bushes came a big tall Indian.

It was all in a play though, so no harm was done. The eighth grade wrote the play themselves. Our mothers came to see it.

After the play the fourth and fifth grades gave a play and recited some poems. The kindergarten sang a song and did a pantomime of the Pilgrims going to church. And last, in the way of entertainment, we all sang the song "Blot sings."

After the program we all had a feast. It was a pot luck lunch and very good.

—Eugene Walter, Eighth grade.

FOOTBALL AT SPORTS FIELD TO END SUNDAY NEXT

King football's San Diego season will come to a dramatic close Sunday when the final whistle calls an end to the Submarine-Marine game, Sports field. The annual battle between two teams is always a colorful event with ranking officers of the Navy and Marine corps teams attending enmass to witness their respective elevens in action.

The Submarines are being made a slight favorite to take the Marines to camp. Their star ball packer, Whitey Wright seems to be the slight edge. Capt. Lott of the Marine 11 will have all his regulars in fine fettle. Callahan, Reynolds, Barrieau and Gibson will no doubt do most of the ball packing for Lott's charges.

For the past five years the Marines have been the leading football squad south of the city of Los Angeles and have done more to bring the game to a high level in San Diego than any other football organization. The Submarines will be battling for supremacy Sunday.

Modoc County—Created February 17, 1874. This county derived its name from a fierce tribe of Indians by that name, which means "the head of the river," and who lived at the headwaters of the Pit river. General O. O. Howard, in an article in the St. Nicholas magazine for May, 1908, page 624, states that the Indian name of the tribe of which Modoc is a corruption is "Maklaks," and means "The People."

Fames for its hunting, fishing and scenic attractions, Modoc also boasts of 450,139 acres under cultivation, 70,325 of which are under irrigation, and is noted for its fine strains of cattle and sheep. The county has 53,193 head of cattle and more than 125,000 sheep. Dairy products are increasing in importance.

Modoc is one of the few remaining sections of the state whose virgin timber resources remain practically untouched. It is estimated that 1,000,000 feet of lumber could be cut daily for 200 years, at the end of which time reforestation would have provided a new growth for cutting.

During the gold rush to California's Mother Lode far to the south, many pioneers traversed this country which was known to the Indians as "The Smiles of God." The warlike Piutes on the east and the still fiercer Modocs on the west discouraged the white man and settlements were not in evidence until the late sixties. The Modoc Lava Beds was the scene of the Modoc War of 1872-73. Soon after the Modocs had been removed against their will to the Klamath Reservation, some 150 braves led by Captain Jack, young Modoc chief, left the reservation, secreted themselves in the lava beds and began depredations against the white. Troops sent against them were routed. Washington ordered a peace parley and a commission headed by Brig. General Edward S. Canby met Captain Jack and his subchiefs under a flag of truce. The general was shot and killed and Captain Jack, who escaped, but finally was captured and hanged at Fort Klamath on October 4, 1873. Population: 8,038. Area: 3823 square miles.

Mono County—Created April 24, 1861. This county derived its name from the Monache Indians, as the Yokuts, their neighbors, called the tribes of this region. In Spanish, the name is interpreted as "monkey." The Monaches were closely related to the northern Piutes of Nevada and the Bannocks of Idaho. Two branches of these tribes now are locally recognized—the Piutes of Bridgeport and Mono Lake and the Washoes of Carson Valley and regions to the north.

Forming the nortern section of the Inyo-Mono playground, this county combines extraordinary scenic, recreational, hunting and fishing attractions with industries centered on sheep, cattle and poultry raising, mining, the growing of apples and other hardy fruits. Here are snow-capped mountains reaching a height of twelve and thirteen thousand feet, great forests, beautiful lakes, volcanic Mono Craters, the unusual Mono Lake, the "Dead Sea of America,", Bodie, famous mining camp of pioneer days, and many other places of interest. No fish swim in Mono Lake, the only life in it due to intensive mineralization being a species of brine shrimp. Several cones of the Mono Craters are 3000 feet high.

The charm of the vast Mono National Forest draws many tourists and vacationists. A total of 796,034 acres of its 1,260,536 acres lie in Mono and Alpine counties.

Mono has rich mineral deposits. Its arable lands are subject to extensive cultivation. The county is capable of supporting many times its present population. Excellent highways now make it easily accessible. Population: 1360. Area: 3030 square miles.

Monterey County—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the state. It derived its name from the bay of Monterey. The word itself is composed of the Spanish words "monte" and "rey", and literally means "king of the forest." The bay was discovered by Sebastian Vizcaino in 1630, and named in honor of his friend and patron, Gaspar de Zuniga, Count of Monterey and Viceroy of Mexico.

The old city of Monterey in this county has been the capital of California under three flags, was the birthplace of the state's first constitution, the first constitutional assembly met there and Monterey claims California's first newspaper, first frame and first brick house, the first theater and the first jury empaneled in the state.

Historic Monterey, a place of beautiful homes, of mountains, valleys, seashore and harbors, has the slogan "The Land of Enchantment." The county offiers a wide range in economic opportunities and recreational resources, the cities and towns are progressive and the rural communities afford unlimited possibilities in diversified farming.

For 124 miles the Monterey shore is washed by the waters of the Pacific. To the east are the picturesque Diable mountains and to the south the Gabilan range. In between are fertile valleys, particularly the great Salinas Valley. The county has 1891 farms totalling 1,305,001 acres. Farming heads the list of leading industries, followed by cattle raising, dairying, fruit and berry raising, poultry, growing of guayule for rubber, and commercial fishing in Monterey bay. Some 20,500 acres are in lettuce which leads all crops in value of output. Attractions for tourists are the famed Del Monte, old Monterey, Pacific Grove, the Seventeen Mile Drive, Big Sur Redwoods, Carmel, Pebble Beach, King City and Salinas, "Rodeo City" of California. Population: 53,705. Area: 3330 square miles.

Next: Napa, Nevada and Orange.

METHODIST CHURCH IS SCENE OF ATTRACTIVE WEDDING

An attractive pre-holiday season wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock Wednesday evening November 27th at the Point Loma Methodist church when Miss Josephine Van Holst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Van Holst of Ogden, Utah, became the bride of Stanley Brauchler, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Brauchler of Latrobe, Pennsylvania, at a ceremony solemnized by the pastor, Rev. James H. Hughes. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McCaffrey.

The prettily decorated church additionally lighted by tall white candelabraes formed a fitting background for the charming bride who was attired in an exquisite dark blue velvet gown of floor length style. She wore a dark blue velvet turban with a short veil. Her shoulder corsage was of rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church to allow the young couple to receive the congratulations of their friends. Refreshments were served and the bride cut the traditional first piece of the wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Brauchler left the church amid a shower of rice to spend a brief honeymoon at Laguna Beach after which they will return to make their home in Ocean Beach.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

"The Voice of God" will be the theme of the pastor's sermon in the morning hour of worship, Sunday, Dec. 8, at 11 o'clock. The choir will render special music.

The evening service at 7:30 o'clock will be a time of singing the old Gospel songs. After which the pastor will speak on the subject "Temptations."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from the Psalms, "The Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is stablished, that it cannot be moved."

Among the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon are these verses from Joel: "Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the Lord will do great things. . . . And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed. And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and none else."

Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, state: "Infinite Mind creates and governs all, from the mental molecule to infinity. . . . Creation is ever appearing, and must ever continue to appear from the nature of its inexhaustible source."

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

La Fayette Plummer will be the forum lecturer at Theosophical Headquarters, Point Loma, next Sunday, December 8. His subject is 'he Permanent and the Fleeting'. Mrs. Inez Davenport will assist in answering questions.

The true philosophy of life, Plummer declares and will endeavor to show, "is the one that will lead the student to realize that nothing endures forever, that civilizations rise and fall, that existing forms of government, that existing sciences, that even religions change as the needs of humanity change. Even the heavens above us are constantly changing and could we see them 50,000 years hence we should see that many of the so-called fixed stars had left their places. One thing only is certain, and that is the Great change called by many Death. But Death is more truly a process of life, not the end or cessation of life. It is really growth, a breaking of one form to burst into another. Life itself is never-ending change."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH OF THE AIR

Local radio listeners will be interested in the news that The Columbia Church of the Air, which will be released over the Columbia Broadcasting System on Sunday, December 8, at 10 a. m., will be conducted by James W. Fulton of Toronto, Canada Christian Science Committee on Publication for Ontario.

SYNOPSIS

The youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe has as her guest her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden. A stranger, exhausted, finds his way to Marcia's home. He asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewels, and naturally believes Heath is a robber, but decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath wires "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedecks herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. Heath asks Marcia to bring them to him. They are gone! Sylvia restores the jewels to their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow discovers them and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and Heath is a thief. Leaving the jewels, he makes plans for arresting Heath. Currier arrives. Marcia overhears Heath describe how he acquired the gems, and is forced to believe him guilty of theft. Currier investigates the hiding place—and finds the gems! He returns to New York with them, but his references to "Mrs. Heath" have convinced Marcia her tender dream has been a foolish one. Elisha and Eleazer come to arrest Heath. The jewels, of course, are not to be found. To Sylvia Marcia admits she loves Heath and has faith in his innocence. She tells him she believes him innocent, but urges him, if he is guilty, to confess. He admits nothing, but compels her to confess she loves him, also telling her he is giving himself up to the sheriff. She insists this must be the end of their association, and he, thinking she will not face the "disgrace," reproaches and leaves her.

Then she swayed, caught at a chair and shrank into it, her body shaking and her breath coming in gasping, hysterical sobs.

The clock ticked on, the surf broke in muffled undertone, the light faded; the candles burned lower, flickered and overflowed the old pewter candle sticks; and still she sat there, her tearless, dilated eyes fixed straight before her.

* * * * * * *

Having no inkling of a change in the delightful relations that had for the past week prevailed in the Homestead, the atmosphere that greeted Sylvia when she came down the next morning was a shock.

Stanley Heath stood at the telephone talking to Elisha Winslow and on the porch outside were grouped his suitcase, overcoat and traveling rug. He was plainly ill at ease and had little except the most commonplace remarks to offer in way of conversation.

Marcia had not slept, as her pallor and the violet shadows beneath her eyes attested.

Although the girl did not understand, she sensed Marcia's need of her and rushed valiantly into the breach—filling every awkward pause with her customary sparkling chatter.

When at length the meal was cut short by the arrival of Elisha Winslow, all three of the group rose with unconcealed relief.

"Wal, Mr. Heath, I see you're expectin' me," grinned the sheriff, pointing toward the luggage beside the door.

"I am, Mr. Winslow."

"I've got my boat. Are you ready to come right along?"

"Quite ready."

Heath went to Sylvia and took her hand.

"Thank you very much," murmured he formally, "for all you've done for me. I appreciate it more than I can say. And you, too, Mrs. Howe."

"I wish you luck, Mr. Heath," called Sylvia.

"Thanks."

"And I, too," Marcia rejoined in a voice scarcely audible.

To this the man offered no reply.

They followed him to the door.

It was then that Marcia sprang forward and caught Elisha's arm.

"Where are you taking him, Elisha?" she demanded, a catch in her voice. "Remember, Mr. Heath has been ill. You must not risk his getting cold or suffering any discomfort."

"You need have no worries on that score, Marcia," replied the sheriff kindly, noticing the distress in her face. "I'll look out for him."

"Where is he going?"

"To my house for the present," Elisha answered. "I've a comfortable spare room an' I figger to put him in it 'til I've questioned him an' verified his story.

"Meantime, nobody in town will be the wiser. I ain't even tellin' May Ellen why Mr. Heath's at the house. If I choose to harbor comp'ny, that's my business. Not a soul 'cept Eleazer's in on this affair an' he's keepin' mum. When him an' me decide we've got the truth, we'll act—not before."

"That relieves my mind very much. Mr. Heath is—you see he—"

"He's a friend of yours—I ain't forgettin' that. I shall treat him 'cordin'ly, Marcia."

"Thank you, Elisha—thank you a hundred times."

There was nothing more to be said.

Heath bowed once again and the two men walked down to the float where they clambered with the luggage into Elisha's dory and put out into the channel.

Sylvia loitered to wave her hand and watch them row away, but Marcia, as if unable to bear the sight, waited for no further farewell.

But by noon she was, to outward appearances, entirely herself. She had not been able, to be sure, to banish her pallor or the traces of sleeplessness; but she had her emotions sufficiently under control to talk pleasantly, if not gaily.

That day and the next passed in much the same strained fashion.

It was not until the third morning that the barriers between the two collapsed.

Marcia had gone into the living room to write a letter. She sat down before the desk and started to take up her pen when Sylvia heard her utter a cry.

"What's the matter, dear?" called the girl, hurrying into the other room.

As Sylvia came nearer, Marcia bowed her head upon the desk and began to sob as if her heart would break.

"Oh, how could he!" moaned the woman. "How could he be so cruel!"

"What has happened, Marcia?"

"Stanley—he has left a check—money—thrown it in my face! And I did it so gladly—because I loved him. He knew that. Yet he could leave this—pay me—as if I were a common servant. I had rather he struck me—a hundred times rather."

The girl took the check.

It was filled out in Stanley Heath's clear, strong hand and was for the sum of a hundred dollars.

"How detestable of him!" she exclaimed. "Tell me, Marcia—what happened between you and Mr. Heath? You quarreled—of course I know that. But why—why? I have not wanted to ask, but now—"

"I'll tell you everything, Sylvia. I'd rather you knew. I thought at first I could keep it to myself, but I cannot. I need you to help me, dear."

Marcia unfolded the story of her blind faith in Stanley Heath; her love for him—a love she could neither resist nor control—a love she had known from the first to be hopeless. She confessed how she had struggled to conceal her feelings; how he himself had resisted a similar attraction in her; how at last he had discovered her secret and forced her to betray it.

"Of course I realized we could not go on," she explained bravely. "That we loved one another was calamity enough. All that remained was for him to go away and forget me—return to his wife, his home, and his former life. Soon, if he honestly tries, this infatuation will pass and everything will be as before. Men forget more easily than women. Absence, too, will help."

"And you, Marcia?"

"I cannot give up my love. It is all I have now. Oh, I do not mean to mourn over it, pity myself, make life unhappy. Instead, I shall be glad, thankful. You will see. This experience will make every day of living richer. You need have no fears for me, Sylvia. You warned me, you know," concluded she with a pathetic little smile.

"I was a brute! I ought to have shielded you more," the girl cried. "I could have, had I realized. Well, I can yet do something, thank heaven. Give me that check."

"What do you mean to do?"

"Return it, of course—return it before Stanley Heath leaves town. I'll take it over to Elisha Winslow's now, this minute."

"I wonder—yes, probably that will be best. You won't, I suppose, be allowed to see Stanley," speculated she timidly. "If you should—"

"Well?"

"Don't say anything harsh, Sylvia. Please do not blame him, or—"

"I'll wring his neck!" was the emphatic retort.

"Oh, please—please dear—for my sake! I can't let you go if you go in that spirit," pleaded Marcia in alarm.

"There, there—you need not worry for fear I shall maltreat your Romeo, richly as he deserves it," was the response. "I could kill him—but I won't—because of you. Nevertheless, I warn you that if I get the chance I shall tell him what I think of him. He is terribly to blame and ought to realize it. No married man has any business playing round with another woman."

"I am half afraid to let you go, Sylvia."

"You don't trust me? Don't you believe I love you?"

"I am afraid you love me too much, dear."

"I do love you, Marcia. I never dreamed I could care so intensely for anyone I have known for so short a time. What you did for my mother alone would make me love you. But aside from gratitude there are other reasons. I love you for your own splendid self, dear. Please do not fear to trust me. I promise you I will neither be unjust nor bitter."

"Take the check then and go. I wish I were to see him."

"Well, you're not! Let him do the explaining and apologizing. Let him grovel at your feet. That's what he ought to do!"

"You won't tell him that."

"I don't know what I shall tell him."

"Please Sylvia! You promised, remember."

"Don't fret. Some of the mad will be taken out of me before I see Mr. Heath. Kiss me and wish me luck, Marcia. You do believe I will try to be wise, don't you?"

"Yes, dear. Yes!"

"That's right. You really can trust me, you know. I'm not so bad as I sound."

Tucking the check into the wee pocket of her sweater, Sylvia caught up her pert beret and perched it upon her curls.

"So long!" she called, looking back over her shoulder as she opened the door. "So long, Marcia! I'll be back as soon as ever I can."

The haste with which she disappeared, suddenly precipitated her into the arms of a young man who stood upon the steps preparing to knock.

"Hortie Fuller," cried Sylvia breathlessly. "Hortie! Where on earth did you come from?"

Her arms closed about his neck and he had kissed her twice before she swiftly withdrew, rearranging her curls and saying coldly:

"I cannot imagine what brought you here, Horatio."

CHAPTER XI

"I can't imagine," repeated Sylvia, still very rosy and flustered, but with her most magnificent air, "what brought you to Wilton—I really cannot."

"Can't you?" grinned Horatio cheerfully.

"No, I cannot."

From his superior height of six-feet-two, he looked down at her meager five feet, amusement twinkling in his eyes.

Sylvia, however, was too intent on patting her curls into place to heed his glance.

"You wrote me to come, didn't you?" he presently inquired.

"I wrote you to come!"

"Well, at least you led me to suppose you'd like it if I were here," persisted Horatio. "Toward the bottom of page two you said: 'I am positively homesick'; and in the middle of the back of page three you wrote: 'It seems years since I've seen you.'"

"What if I did?" answered the girl with a disdainful shrug.

Nevertheless the dimples showed in her cheeks.

"And that isn't all," Horatio went on. "At the end of page five you wrote: 'Would that you were here'!"

Sylvia bit her lip.

"That was only a figure of speech—what is called poetic license."

"Then you didn't mean it when you said you wished I was here."

Horatio was obviously disappointed.

"Why, of course I am pleased to see you, Horatio. It is very nice of you to come to the Cape to meet my aunt and—"

"Darn your aunt!" he scowled. "I didn't come to see her. I am not interested in aunts."

"Take care! I happen to be very keen on this aunt of mine. If she didn't like you, you might get sent home. Don't be horrid, Hortie. I truly am glad you've come. You must make allowance for my being surprised. I haven't got over it yet. How in the world did you contrive to get away at this season? And what sort of a trip did you have?"

"Swell! I stopped overnight in New York at the Gardners. Mother wanted me to deliver a birthday cake to Estelle, who, you may remember, is the mater's god-daughter. She's a pippin, too. I hadn't seen her since she graduated from Vassar."

Sylvia listened.

She did not need to be told about the Gardners.

They had visited Horatio's family more than once and rumor had it the elders of both families would be delighted were the young people to make a match of it.

"I'm surprised you did not stay longer in New York," Sylvia observed, gazing reflectively at her white shoe.

"New York wasn't my objective. I came on business, you see. Dad gave me two months off so I could get married."

Sylvia jumped.

"I was not aware you were engaged," murmured she in a formal, far-away tone.

"I'm not," came frankly from Horatio Junior. "But I'm going to be. In fact I chance to have the ring with me this minute. Want to see it?"

"I always enjoy looking at jewels," was her cautious retort.

Horatio felt of his pockets.

"Where on earth did I put that thing?" he muttered. "Hope I haven't lost it. Oh, here it is."

He took out a tiny velvet case and sprang the catch.

"Oh, Hortie! Isn't it beautiful!" Sylvia cried. "It fairly takes away my breath."

"Try it on."

She shook her head.

"It wouldn't fit me. My hands are too small."

"It's a small ring. Here. Put it on," he urged, holding it toward her.

"Well, I suppose I might try it to please you. But I know it will be too large."

She slipped it on her finger.

"Why, it does fit. How odd!"

"Very odd indeed," he answered drily, as she reached her hand out into the sun and turned the diamonds so that they caught the light.

"Looks rather well on, doesn't it?" was his comment.

"It is a beautiful ring."

Horatio, standing behind her, twice extended his arms as if to gather her into them and twice withdrew them, deciding the action to be premature.

At length with a determined squaring of his shoulders, he locked his hands behind him and stood looking on while she continued to twist the ring this way and that.

"Well," yawned he after an interval, "I suppose I may as well put it back in the box."

Designers in a Mood for Pleating

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PLEATS, pleats and nothing but pleats, is the message of many of the smartest fashions this season. Turn where one will in the realm of costume design, there's an orgy of intriguing pleated effects "carrying on." So let's keep up with the mode while we talk about pleats, pleated and being pleated.

French designers, especially, are not leaving anything unpleated that could, should and must be pleated according to their idea of things. Their pleated mood pertains to daytime fashions as well as those of highest evening formality. The all-over pleated gown reflecting Grecian inspiration is a highlight in evening modes. Evening capes to go with these lovely creations are also completely pleated in waistline or longer lengths. In daytime fashions the all-over pleated dress, has also been received with acclaim.

However, all-over pleating is only one phase of the subject, for the use of pleats is embracing every sort from the tiniest of sprightly pleated edgings which run hither and thither about hemlines and up and down, flanking each side of neat buttoned closings which sometimes extend from head to foot. Some designers there are who make a feature of pleated tiers and apron fronts and pleated sleeves.

The new fabrics are entering into the pleated conspiracy with a noble gesture. Most of them seem made just to be pleated—fairly invite one to pleat them. Take the all-silk black crepe which is so ultra smart for daytime dresses. It pleats to perfection. A statement that does not need a second telling after one glimpses the stunning gown in the center of the illustration. Pleated every inch of the way is this black silk crepe afternoon dress. The pleats are stitched down at the neck, shoulders and waist, giving a fitted well-groomed appearance to the frock. A green clasp at the throat and a suede belt in the same color provide bright contrast. This dress is the much talked-of Molyneaux which is meeting with such outstanding success this season.

An effective treatment of wider pleats in a black silk crepe dress for the young girl, is pictured to the left. The pleats are stitched with tailored precision about the hipline and released half way down the skirt so as to slenderize at the same time that it provides a flared hemline. The bodice is a modified shirtwaist with tiny metal buttons in front.

Speaking of the new materials adapting themselves so readily to the pleated mode, the new silk lame weaves, many of which are sheer and tissue-like in texture, enter into the scheme of things with infinite grace. If you are wanting a lovely gown for prom gayety, here it is at the right in the group pictured. Shirrings and pleats go fifty-fifty in the instance of this ultra chic and adorable evening dress made of silver silk lame. The shirred top is held by narrow double straps, and the decolletage is outlined by a tiny band of pleats. The pleated theme continues in the skirt, held well in place by the crispness of the silk lame. The only trimming is the metal and jeweler buckle of the belt.

Among the pleated triumphs in evening fashions are the perfectly charming airy-fairy floating visions of silk chiffon, most lovely, perhaps, in white but which set your heart throbbing at faster pace in any of the new jewel colors or pastel shades. Sometimes only the skirt is pleated, but when it is, it's done so artfully it flutters out like a fleeting cloud or a mist enveloping the figure.

WEAR TO SCHOOL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Is the "what to give for Christmas" problem beginning to disturb your peace of mind? If it's Junior or little sister you have in mind, the answer will be found in the picture. To become the happy possessor of a pig-grain three-quarter length coat just like big brother's is enough to bring a big smile to any little boy. Little girls have a liking for leather coats, too, for no doubt they have heard their elders declare that leather's the thing for smart sports wear.

FUR CAPES RICHER; OF MANY VARIETIES

Fur capes are richer than they have been in years. Full-length evening models are made of strips of silver fox running from shoulder to hem—one very elegant one boasting twenty full-sized animal skins. Knee-length day capes are fashioned of mink, silver fox, dyed red fox or moleskin, while any number of shorter capes appear in astrakhan, nutria or broadtail.

Occasionally the fur capes for day wear are cut with broad shoulders and little fullness below so that they hang straight, though more often they have some flare.

New Soft Wool Weaves Are Proving Popular Just Now

With wool increasing in fashion importance, and women's insistence on being comfortable indoors as well as out, something pretty definite has been done in this year's weaves for the interests of all concerned.

This year's domestic weaves are as soft as chiffon, warm enough for all normal purposes, and have taken on an additional silky finish, adding to wearing enjoyment.

Colors have never been more flattering. That day has gone when winter means somber tones, and the "little wool frock" to wear underneath the tweed coat or the fur sport coat may be as gay and colorful as one's temperament demands.

Whiter Blouses

White silk blouses should never be hung out to dry as it will yellow them. Wrap them in towels until ironing. If they become yellowed in spite of your precaution, use a little whitening in the rinse waetr.

Sharp Contrast

Paris is wearing black afternoon frocks with billowy white sleves—a style becoming to many women.

2,150 Pounds Amount of Food You Eat Per Year

You will eat a ton of food this year—2,150 pounds, the statisticians say. Milk, fluid and canned, and other dairy products, will account for half of this. (Milk is heavy.) You will eat about 150 pounds of meat, and about the same amount of fresh fruit; 150 pounds of fresh vegetables, not counting 150 pounds of potatoes.

In bread and cakes and breakfast foods and macaroni, you will consume 230 pounds of flour and cereals. Sugar, 102 pounds of it, is the next most important item. Of canned fruits and vegetables, you will eat 38 pounds, states Today.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

PATTERN 2386

If you're hesitating between a tailored or a dressy frock for fall, why not combine the best features of both in this smart two-piece model. The blouse has interesting inverted pleats which release fullness either side of a panel above and below the waist, producing a chic peplum effect. An unusual round collar has deep shoulder proportions, parting in back to allow for an opening. The sleeves may draw to a tight close at the wrist, or stop below the elbow, as in the small sketch. You've satin, crepe or one of the new plaid cottons or wools to choose from, but remember, two fabrics are smarter than one this year.

Pattern 2386 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 2½ yards 54 inch fabric and ¾ yard 39 inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Body of Caruso Lies in State; Embalmed in 1921

Because his friends and admirers in his native Italy could not bear to think of the body of Enrico Caruso moldering away in the earth after his death in 1921, they had it embalmed by a special process to preserve it indefinitely. The corpse of the famous singer still lies in a glass-covered casket in a mausoleum near Naples wrapped in an American flag.

Clothing on the body is changed every three years.

Courtesy assemblies between high schools gives the impetus for the double assembly to be presented by Point Loma at Memorial Junior high school, Dec. 10 at 8:30. The Loman Quartette and the Point Loma Trio will be the features of the program. Soloists will be Mack Graham, oboe and May Sakamoto, piano.

The program will be the same broadcast over KGB last week.

—PLHS—

Ask some of the football boys how they enjoyed the bus breakdown between Yuma and home. With Thanksgiving dinner quite remote, if they waited to get help, the boys and Mr. Swenson feasted at El Centro. However it was a cold dawn which saw their arrival in San Diego around six a. m.

—PLHS—

Slides on "Our America" were shown at Thursday's assembly. Dr. Frederick Vining Fisher, formerly at the House of Hospitality, showed the slides to the students. The pictures were unusually colorful and the photography was excellent. Dr. Fisher proved to be a very effective lecturer.

—PLHS—

Raymond Keck, who lectured recently to the students on conditions in Ethiopia, will again speak to them Friday. This time his topic is India. Students are looking forward to this well informed man, who seems to have the knack of picturing accurately the life and conditions of the countries he has visited.

The assembly is sponsored by the Hi-Y group from Point Loma.

—PLHS—

Basketball practice has started, which means that while some of the boys will change from football togs to basketball shorts, there will be some new names on the sport pages for the next few weeks.

—PLHS—

A trip to the broadcasting station KGB proved interesting to a class of boys at Point Loma. This trip was the second to gain first hand information on the different means of communication.
